Death Caps Tense Day In Ulster Soldier Is Slain

As Parades End

By John M. Lee BELFAST, July 12 (NYT) .- A British soldier was killed by a sniper in a Catholic neighborhood of Belfast today. The incident occurred as the Protestants of Northern Ireland flaunted their power in the ennual parades of the Iraternal Orange Order. More than 11,000 soldiers in full riot gear, bolstered by 4,000 policemen, held this British prov-mer celebration. The parades commemorate a Protestant political and religious victory, the Battle of the Boync, in 1690. The Orange Order takes its name from the victor, King William III, formerly William of Orange, who defeated the Catholic forces of the deposed King

Heath Sees Parliament Vote for EEC

By Anthony Lewis

LONDON, July 12 (NYI) .-Primo Minister Edward Heath said today that he was completely confident of winning Parlia-ment's approval for British entry into the Common Market,

He radiated optimism at a special news conference on the ers-an imparial event here. Frime ministers see reporters in-formally from time to time but rately hold open sessions with them.

The one warning vote today was on the possibility of an extreote opposition Labor policy. Mr. Heath said that it would be a very serious matter" if the Labor party committed itself to take Britain out of the market when back in power.

That is, in fact, the unstated goal of Labor's anti-marketeers. They hope to get an anti-joining resolution through a special party conference this Saturday and then go on in October, at the annual conference, to pledge withdrawal from the market.

'Serious Matter'

he went on to remark:

He was asked several times why he did not allow his own Conservatives a free vote on the mar-ket issue instead of putting them under party orders. Many observers think Labor would do the eme, thus producing more Labor votes for entry. "If you put it from the European countries point of view." Mr. Heath said. "I think they would expect the government to give a firm lead. We have made the clearest possible recommendation to Parliament and are, therefore, fully entitled to ask our supporters to support us."

Established Policy

Libyan support for the coup is based on Tripoli's established policy. The present Libyan government came to power in September, 1969, when a group of army officers led by Moamer Kazafuy deposed King Idris I.

Col. Kazafuy, now 31, is head of Libya's ruling Revolutionary Command Council. He has long been impatient with Morocco's moderate stand, especially regarding the Arab conflict with Israel.

Tripoli radio also criticized King Hussein of Jordan for rushing off to Rabat to support his fellow monarch and said the Moroccan coup meant also that the days were growing short for monarchy in Jordan.

A leading independent Beirut newspaper, Al Nahar, suggested that Libya might not be the only nation supporting the coup had it been successful. It praised Col. Kazafuy for "showing more courage than other Arab leaders."

The leftist newspaper Al Shaab, which supports Egypt, said: "The Moroccan people have lost a battle but not the war."

Kissinger, on One-Day Visit To Paris, Fails to See Reds

(Continued from Page 1) prisoners with U.S. military withdrawal from Vietnam, esparated these military questions from those of a political settlement in Saigon-and made the terms for such a political settlement, in most observers' opinion, considerably more flexible.

Mr. Kissinger and Mr. Bruce began their consultations shortly after 10 a.m. at the embassy, then moved over to Ambassador Watson's residence for a working luncheon. Mr. Bruce left the residence after the luncheon, while Mr. Kissinger conferred with aides who had accompanied him to India and Pakistan.

Mr. Bruce, however, returned to the residence two-and-a-half hours later to continue the Vietnam discussions until Mr. Kissinger departed for a private dinner with a personal friend. U.S. spokesmen said categorically that the friend had "absolutely nothing to do with Vietnam, Southeast Asia or even foreign affairs."

Throughout the consultations, as on arrival, Mr. Kissinger refused to say a word to newsmen -in sharp contrast not only with Le Duc Tho, who unveiled the new line at a long news conference on arrival, but with the several re-cent visits here of U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who on each occasion has without disclosing state secrets-freely and broadly explained the general purpose of his activities.

Mr. Kissinger is expected to report tomorrow to President Nixon on his world tour-which included stops at Saigon, Bang-kok and New Delhi as well as Rawalpindi and Paris. The most significant gesture of the trip took place in Saigon, where Mr. Kissinger met separately with Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh and with Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, both expected to oppose President Nguyen Van Thieu's bid for re-election.

Meanwhile, observers continued to speculate over the apparently breadening political flexibility being indicated by Le Duc Tho in a series of statements and interviews. In the latest interview, appearing in Le Nouvel Obser vateur today, the North Vietnamese leader hinted that a cease-fire between South Vietnamese and Communist forces rould be possible even before formation of a "national concord" or coalition government, as stipulated in the July I Communist seven-point peace plan,

Major Condition

According to the plan, the Communist prerequisite for any discussion with Salgon would be formation of a new administration there, replacing that of President Thieu and pronouncing itself for "peace, independence, neutrality and democracy." Communist spokesmen have already indicated that almost any new administration would do, arrived at "by various means." But the seven-point plan said that there would be no cease-fire until that new Saigon administration reached accord with the Viet Cong on formation of a coalition.

In his Nouvel Observateur in terview, Le Duc Tho repeated the plan's assertion that "a general cease-fire in the South could only come with the formation of a government of national concord." He went on to say, how-

"But if a new government is formed in Saigon, showing a spirit of peace, do you think that the struggle could really continue? It is not the Vietnamese who are inclined to fight each other: they are being forced to do 50.7

In talking about the future of a new South Vietnamese government, the Hanoi leader noted that Mrs. Binh had already recalled that South Vietnam would not become a "neo-colony," However, he added: "But it is not Socialist. The important thing is that it should be independent."

Besides the violence there are also political developments that are discouraging for efforts to promote stability.

The principal Catholic opposition party in the Northern Ireland legislature, the Social Democratic and Labor party, has threatened to withdraw and set up an alternative assembly unless the British government orders a judicial inquiry into the deaths of the two Catholics killed in Londonderry last week. Catholics say the two men were unarmed. Today in London, Lord Bainell,

Allende Charges 'Mismanagement'

By Lewis H. Diuguid SANTIAGO, July 12 (WP),— The Chilean congress last night manimously approved a constitutional amendment requiring nacopper interests in Chile.

The two bouses in a joint session voted President Salvador Aliende the power to seize the foreign property now and later provide data for determining compensation.

In the historic congressional session, all 158 senators and deputies present voted in favor of what is known, on thousands of posters, as "Reclaiming Chile's Riches." Two legislators were absent.

Representatives of all parties in the political spectrum from left to right spoke with varying degrees of ferror for the amendment. Despite numerous objections from the opposition to some clauses, no one chose to be counted as against nationalization.

Earlier in the day, President Allende quoted from a study by French experts to char; that the Americans had mismanaged the mines. This allegation almost certainly will affect indemnification and U.S.-Chilean relations.

Mr. Allende, celebrating "the Day of National Dignity" by speaking at the mining town of Rancagua, charged Anaconda and Kennecott mining companies not only with mismanagement but also with having taken excess

Karachi, is a figure of some importance in Pakistan today. Ten years ago, he encountered the then Vice-President of the United States, Lyndon Johnson, while the latter was on a good-will tour of Asis He was transported to Texas, given a brand-new pick-up truck, and went back to his homeland in a kind of Arabian nights' dream. But automotive trucking was not the same as leading a camel; Bashir Ahmzd encountered many financial misfortunes, and in his present state of unhappiness, with the battered truck standing unused by his mud-hrick house, he has become for West Pakistanis a symbol of the fickleness of American aid to their coun-

It is, of course, a symbolism with a number of facets. Many Americans are protesting, not the transience of American aid to President Yahya Khan's government, but its persistence in the teeth of the tragedy of East Pakistan. And they would be likely to point out that poor Bashir Ahmad is typical of too much of America's technological assistance, in that it has uprooted a man from his old ways, without giving him the akills to carry on in a new fashion, with new tools. Nor will the use being made of Bashir Ahmad's plight by Pakistani propagandists make Mr. Kissinger's recent visit to

Bashir Ahmad, erstwhile camel driver of Rawaipindi any easier on his return than it can have done during his presence in What Mr. Kissinger sought to accomplish in Pakistan is still a state secret (there are some, in American diplomacy). Perhaps ha sought to convince his hosts that American aid alone could not austain the extremely shaky Pakistani economy while most of the world regards that economy as unsalvageable until there is some reasonable settlement of the issue of Bangla Desh. That, at least, is the central facet of the case.

This is not a matter of substituting trucks for camels. It is simply that the source of most of Pakistan's exports-East Pakistanis in such a state of turmoil that no amount of military rule can bring it back to full productivity within the foreseeable future. There has to be a political settlement; a generous settlement that will bring back the millions of East Pakistanis who are threatening to upset the Indian polity, and which will encourage them to help restore the system shattered by the West Pakistani imposition of force. This could mean drastic changes in Pakistan; it is possible that nothing short of independence for Bangla Desh will do the trick. But it is fairly obvious that American aid to the iliusion of a united Pakistan will be as illusory a benefit as Bashir Ahmad's truck.

The Republican Outlook

Having edged his way into the White House with no votes to spare. President Nixon has systematically moved the Republican party's center of gravity to the right. Two and one-half years after he took office, he presides over a party more conservative than the one which nominated him in 1968 and considerably more so than the one which chose him in 1960. If public opinion polls and the results of last year's mid-term elections are accurate indicators, President Nixon has not widened his party's base of support. His re-election is in doubt and the prospects for his party's success are cloudier now than they were after the Miami Beach convention three years ago. In his own values, Mr. Nixon is a pragmatic centrist. His pragmatism prevailed when he formed his administration. He borrowed Gov. Rockefeller's chief foreign policy adviser-Henry Kissinger-to head his own foreign staff and a Kennedy Democrat-Daniel P. Moynihan—to head his domestic brain trust. His original cabinet was a nonideological mixture of personal friends, political supporters. a former political rival (George W. Romney) and businessmen, the whole having a mildly progressive cast. If there were Goldwaterite ideologues on the White House staff and in the higher reaches of the departments, there the-road voters who are moderate on ecowas also a sprinkling of Ripon Society pro-

As the years have passed and the decisions been made, however, this centrist administration on most of the big issues has come down on the right-of-center side. Having made his comeback within his own party between 1964 and 1968 as the man who could rebuild on the wreckage left by the Goldwater defeat and make the conservative and Southern strategies, Mr. Nixon is always mindful of the power of Sen. Goldwater, Sen. Thurmond and Gov. Reagan. The support of their constituencies made his nomination possible.

In his efforts to manage public opinion with regard to the Vietnam war, his nominations to the Supreme Court, his approach to crime and civil liberties, and his dispensing of patronage and political influence, President Nixon has catered to conservatives or taken care that they not be able to outflank him. These conservative moves loom larger in the public mind and have more political impact than his sponsorship of progressive welfare reform or his relatively enlightened position on some environmental health care and economic issues. These moves have not pacified the right-wing zealots who snipe at Mr. Nixon for ideological softness, but they have fended off the much more serious threat of a rival candidacy next year by the White House's bogey, Gov. Reagan. They have also strengthened Mr. Nixon against his thirdparty competitor, Gov. Wallace.

But for the strength he has consolidated on the right, the President has probably snffered greater corresponding losses among Republican liberals and centrists, GOP progressives feel more isolated and enfeebled than at any time in the last 30 years. Their sense of weakness is hardly a source of party strength and morale in key industrial states.

It is not merely that the President has failed to make headway with young voters -whose ranks are greatly swelled by the 18-year-old vote amendment which became part of the Constitution last week-or that his support among blacks has declined very nearly to the vanishing point. It is rather that his management of the war and controversial Supreme Court nominations have shaken the confidence of many middle-ofnomic issues and who might otherwise be disposed to give Mr. Nixon the benefit of the doubt-and the benefit of their votes-on Election Day, 1972.

The unexpected rebel candidacy of Rep. Paul McCloskey of California is likely to test the depths of this disillusionment with the President's record. A young third-term congressman with a heroic record as a Marine officer in the Korean war, Mr. Mc-Closkey has proved himself an intelligent and articulate critic of administration war policy. He shows exceptional political courage in challenging his own party's President.

Mr. McCloskey faces a much tougher battle than former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy did in challenging President Johnson. Mr. Nixon has a firmer grip on the party organization in most states than his predecessor had, and Republicans are traditionally less hospitable than Democrats to insurgent candidacles. But the Grand Old Party is not a monolith The McCloskey candidacy may show that the fissures of Republican doubt and dissent run deeper than they appear.

West Pakistan's punitive military expedition into the eastern part of the country is a fatal act of violence which is not only laying waste to Bengal and Subjecting it to unspeakable suffering but has also brought West Pakistan to the brink of economic ruin and is progressively threatening its own precarious political situation.

The policy of blood and iron has created a point of no return: "Bangla Desh" may in the long run remain only a dream cultivated by emigrants in Calcutta, but the question is whether Pakistan as a whole can ever become anything more than West Pakistan plus a militarily held annex garrisoned by

The terms are if anything better than could have been expected when the Labor government made up its mind to renew Britain'a application. In the last analysis advocacy of membership represents an act of faith and this applies to the government just as much as to the public. It is faith in its judgment which the government must now create.

By Anthony Lewis

TONDON.-After Hitler, there were many-and not only Germans by any means—who said they had had no idea of the extent of the horror. They knew terrible things were happening, but 6 million Jews in the gas chambers...

Similarly with Stalin's terror in the Soviet Union, it took years for people even in the West to appreciate the level of brutality and murder that obtained. And in Vietnam: most of us failed for too long to understand the inevitable consequences of Amerlean tactics in terms of buman misery, death and destruction. Right now another immense human disaster is taking place for political reasons. This time there can be no excuse for any informed person failing to understand what is happening; conof the horror to the imagination. And yet, somehow, some responsible men do not see.

The disaster is in East Pakistan. Since West Pakistani troops moved in last spring to suppress the eastern political movement, 6 million people have fled to India. Tens, probably hundreds, of thousands have been killed. And the feeble Pakistani propaganda claim to be dealing only confirmation from two persuasive with "miscreants" does not conceal the fact that the army is killing and terrorizing on grounds of race and politics.

An Account

A first-hand account of the savagery appeared on June 13 the Sunday Times of London, It was by Anthony Mascarenhas, a West Pakistani journalist who went to the east with a group at the army's invitation but was so sickeoed by what he saw that he came to Britain to tell the

This comes through clearly in the interview given to The New York Times by Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese polithuro mem-ber, who obviously traveled to Paris last month for the express purpose of launching the Communists' new diplomatic offen-

Judging from Tho's remarks in the interview, the Communists are apparently convinced that the American and South Vietranese peoples are so fed up with the conflict that they are willing to accept different arrangements

For that reason, it seems, Tho pot forth the proposal that the dual question of American pris-oners and a U.S. troop with-drawal date be separated from the issue of a political settlement

By adopting this strategy, the Communists appear to be taking anvantage of the fact that the American and South Vietnamese peoples are no longer joined in a common cause—if they ever were. The problem of U.S. captives in Hanoi does not exercise the South Vietnamese, Similarly, the eventual shape of the Saigon government is of scant concern to Americans anxious to see their husbands and sons home.

Thus the Communists are striving to drive a wedge between the Americans and South Vietnamese by underlining that their interests at this stage in the war are

Two Targets

In other words, they are saying to the South Visinamese: You are being killed for the to U.S. public opinion: "You are being deprived of your loved ones for the sake of the present Salgon regime."

Ironically, the Nixon administration unwittingly provided the Communists with the opportunity to employ this strategy by link-ing the prisoner issue to the broader question of a settlement in South Vietnam

Starting last fall and building up through the spring, the ad-ministration publicized the prisoner problem in everything from television commercials to football games. The President and his spokesmen repeatedly asserted that the U.S. withdrawal timetable was connected to the fate of the captives.

In late April, for instance, Mr. Nixon even went so far as to warn that a U.S. military contingeot would remain in Vietnam "until we get our prisoners released." If North Victorin is "so barbaric that they continue to hold our POWs," he said, "then we're going to keep a re-sidual force no matter how long

Bargaining Point

But instead of frightening to reveal to the Communista that the prisoners were a bargaining counter that they could use in their efforts to sway U.S. public

Proceeding with their characteristic caution, they first indicated that they would "discuss" the release of prisoners in ex-change for an early U.S. withdrawal date. Then, the Viet Cong delegate in Paris issued a firmer offer to free the captives if the United States set a schedule for pulling all its forces out of Viet-sources. Both make clear, moreover, that the terror did not stop soon after the army takeover but has continued. One of these sources is the report by a joint team of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, just distributed to the bank's direc-tors. It found a continuing reign of military terror in East Pakistan. Much of the urban population has been killed or has fled, the report said; guerrilla activity is growing.

The other weighty confirma-tion comes from four members of the British Parliament wbo bave just toured the area. Two Conservative and Labor MPs; they went at the invitation of the Pakistan government and were hardly prejuback saying they were sickened by what one called the army's continuing repression using the most brutal methods."

Not a Hitler

Now General Yahya Khan is not Hitler, and it is doubtless true that his government did not set out deliberately to commit mass murder and destruction in its eastern territory. But those are the results. That is wby the silence in some quarters is so puzzling. President Nixon has said nothing. That great moralist, U Thant, who regularly criticized American action in Vietnam, has not had much to say about racial killink by Pakistani soldiers, And there are many others. The answer must be that they are all practical men: Yahya is in charge, and so it is necessary to do business with birn. That is the import of recent testimony by a State Department official who said that a cut-off of American aid would "undermine the productive political relations with the government of Pakistan." Even in practical terms, that is a doubtful argument. The World Bank mission reported that chaos in East Pakistan precluded effective use of aid now. The British government, among others, has said there must first be a political settlement-necessarily meaning some form of autonomy for the east, Reginald Prentice, who was minister for overseas develop-ment in the Labor government, wrote after visiting Pakistan that outside economic pressure on the Pakistaoi generals was the "only hope." His experience to the aid field, he said, made him think it was "wroog in 99 cases out of 100 to attach political conditions-but this is the 100th." There are now reports in London that the Chinese government is reassessing its com-mitment to Yahya Khan; it may bave come to feel that a split between East and West Pakistan is inevitable. Hopefully, Henry Kissinger will bring back from his visit to Pakistan a realistic appraisal of the political future. But the American interest goes beyond realism. We can no longer ability to make unpleasant govcriments around the world behave well, but there does come a point at which selfrespect requires us to stop helping them. That is why an American official, one who is certainly a realist, said the other day: "There is not much we can do -pardon the phrase-our moral

Bernard Levin From London:

Heine said: Britain is a country that the sea would have swallowed long ago, were it not for the fact that the sea was afraid of getting indigestion.

LONDON.—The highest mountain in Britain is called Ben Nevis, and is in Scotland. It is 4.406 feet high, and toward the end of last week, in a shade temperature of 86 degrees Fahrenheit, a gentleman wearing a kilt, a beard and horn-rimmed spectacles fell down it while trying to push a piane to the top in a wheelbarrow, it being his intention, on arriving at the summit, to play a patriotic air called "Scotland the Brave."

Let me get one thing perfectly clear. They only hire me to tell you what goes on in this country: I'm damned if I'm going to he held responsible for it.

As you say, it seems an odd thing for a man to be doing in a heat wave (or at any other time, for that matter). And it is true that Heinrich Heine said: Britain is a country that the sea would have swallowed long ago, were it not for the fact that the sea was afraid of getting indigestion." But it must be clearly understood that if I am to attempt to explain the affair, it is on the basis that nothing I say can be held against me ister. Agreed?

Then here is the point: The gentleman's name was Campbell. At first sight, this may seem shed very little light on the matter. But to anyone familiar with the history of Scotland, it will shed much. The Campbells are one of the principal clans; or tribes, of the Highlands of Scotland, and things happen in the Righlands that do not happen

Dynastic Struggle

Until very modern times-certainly until late in the 18th century—the effects of the dynastic struggle for Britain and of the interclan feuds produced in the Highlands savageries that are al-most beyond belief. This is Macaulay on occurrences that were common practice as late as the end of the 17th century.

"The Macdonalds of Glengarry, baving been affronted by the people of a parish near inverness, surrounded the parish church on a Sunday, shut the doors, and burned the whole congregation alive. While the flames were raging, the hereditary musiclan of the murderers mocked the shricks of the perishing crowd with the notes of his bagpipe. A band of Machead of an enemy, laid it. the mouth filled with bread and cheese, on his sister's table, and had the satisfaction of seeing her go mad with horror at the sight. The inhabitants of Eigg selzed some Macleods, bound them hand and foot, and turned them adrift in a boat to be swallowed up by the waves. or to perisb of hunger. The Macleods retaliated by driving the population of Rigg into a cavern, lighting a fire at the entrance, and suffocating the whole race, men, women

And so on. But of all the horrors that the Highlands have produced, none has burned a deeper scar on Scotland than the massacre of Giencoe, which the place in 1692, four years after the Giorious Revolution which had brought the gentle William of Orange to the English throng, and supposedly ushered in an evof harmony and peace throughout the kingdom.

Iu the circumstances of the most dreadful treachery the murderers were quartered, in friendship and hospitality, upon their victims for 12 days, during which they feasted and sported together—the Clan Campbell tell upon the Clan Macdonald in the middle of the night with the intention of slaughtering every one of them. A Dissent

Alas! Another victim of the Vietnem war. In the columns of the Herald Tribune today Cyrus Sulzberger succumbed to several grave fallacies

Rather than a lamentable failure of national purpose, as Mr. Sulsberger would have it, public faintheartedness in supporting the Victnam excursion has been a demonstration of national common sense. The collective judgment of the nation, at first dimly but now clearly perceived, has been that Vietnam was an irrelevant and finally dangerous diversion. The Pentagon Papers (and indeed most of recent history) underline the principle that the collective views of a democratic people, based on instinct and common sense, are generally superior in the long run to those of most of its leaders — particularly, I might add, the non-elective ones.

As for loss of faith by allies, nur principal allies in Europe clsewhere have for years been urging us, publicly or privately, to get out of Vietnam.

He even indicated that the pattern could be reversed, and a Berlin deal would follow the security conference, a project dear to the hearts of Communist leaders.

"The West Berlin problem could be more easily solved after there is a lessening of European tensions," he told a press con-ference marking the opening of the annual Baltic Sea Week.

Mr. Winzer's remarks were particularly interesting because his press conference was the first by a top-level Communist func-tionary since Erich Honecker succeeded Walter Ulbricht as perty leader six weeks ago. They were in direct contradiction to the West German position, backed by Bonn's allies, that a Berlin settlement must precede other steps aimed at reducing European

U.S. Women Take Battle for Equal Pay and Equal Work to Courts

WASHINGTON (MYT).-Federal courts across the nation have handed down a stream of decisions in recent months that appear to be on their way toward wiping out laws that prohibit women from working in certain types of jobs, limit their hours of work and decrease their opportentiles for promotions.

Recent decisions of various federal courts in the broad area of employment rights of women

• Hold employers liable for awards of back pay to women who were kept from working overtime or denied employment better-paid job classifications solely because of their sex.

qualification" for soma jobs.

None of these cases has yet reached the Supreme Court, and lawyers who are active in the field of women's rights concede it is possible that the Supreme Court could reverse or limit some of the lower court decisions in marriage, pregnaocy, back pay and occupation qualifications cases. What are generally termed the state "protective" laws are different matter, however. Women's rights lawrers, even those who represent employers, generally feel there is no doubt held invalid. The lower courts, in more than a dozen cases so far, have been unanimous in invalidating these laws, which limit the hours of the day and night during which women may work, restrict the amount of overtime they may work, aet maximum weights they may lift on the job, and in some states, ban completely their employment in occupations such as mining.

whatever that these laws will be

Title VII

A number of federal district courts and the Ninth Circult Court of Appeals have all held that these laws conflict with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and that the federal law takes precedence. Title VII prohibits discrimination in hirlog and in job assignments, on the basis of sex, race, color, religion or national origin.

Some women's rights lawyers believe the issue of state "protective" laws may never actually reach the Supreme Court, because most employers do not appeal once they have lost a sex-discrimination case through invalldation of a state law which they were obeying. The first such case to reach even the level of the court of appeals was decided only last month.

The prospective elimination of all the etate "protective" laws may have an impact on the prospects for enactment of the pending equal rights amendment to the Constitution, which would bar eliminated the "bona fida occo- Supreme Court, the court kept sex discrimination through any pation qualification" from the open the determination of what action of a government.

Advocates of the amendment believa it would still be needed, however, even if all the "protective" laws were eliminated, because otherwise there would be no way to force states to end sex discrimination in their property laws and family relations laws, or to end sex discrimination by state university systems.

Opposents of the equal rights amendment, which have includ-ed a number of unions and some women union leaders, have based their opposition largely on the argument that working-class women needed the protection against exploitation by employers that the state laws provided. If the state laws are eliminated anyway, that argument against the amendment would disappear.

Argument

Most of the cases that have resulted in invalidation of the various state laws have been brought by working-class women. They have argued that whatever their original intent, these laws have actually operated to keep women from earning premium overtime and night-shift pay, to keep them out of better-paid job classifications and to prevent their promotion to jobs such as foreman, where overtime is often

In situations where state laws were not an issue, different federal courts have taken different views of the extent to which an employer may systematically refuse to hire one sex or the other for certain jobs, because the emplayer believes only one sex can perform well at the job. Three very different recent decisions, however, would all limit sharply an employer's right to claim that sex was a "bone fide occupational qualification" for a job.

The strongest of the three recent cases, Diaz vs. Pan American World Airways, involved a man who wanted to be assigned as a steward on a Pan Am route that used only stewardesses. The airline argued that passengers on this type of flight preferred women as airplane cabin attendants. and that strong consumer preference constituted a "bone tide occupational qualification."

The Pifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled, however, that "discrimination based on sex is valid only when the essence of the business operation would be undermined" by the failure to hire one sex exclusively.

Another case, Weeks vs. South-ern Bell, involved a woman who wanted a job as switchman with telephone company. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the employer had the burden of proving that substantially all women could not perform the job safely and efficiently.

In another case, Rosenfeld va. Southern Pacific, involving a wo-man who wanted to be a railroad agent, the ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that an individual tunity to prove she could do the returned the case to the trial court for a determination of whether parenthood "if demonstrably more relevant to job performance for a woman than for a man" could be a bona fide occupation qualification-or disqualification, in this instance. The legality of the rules of many airlines which require stewardesses to remain single if they are to keep their jobs is an issue that appears headed for the Supreme Court. In a case against United Air Lines, the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals recently held that the sirling could not successfully defend to self against charges of sex discommination on the ground that it did not discriminate against all women but just against mar-ried women. United has indicated it will appeal. There is an old case involving Delta Airlines lo which the court held the nomarriage rule valid.

Two Cases

Women's rights activists are particularly pleased with one of the two cases they have recently won in federal district courts invalidating requirements that women take leave from their jobs. at a certain point in pregnancy, In Cohen vs. Chesterfield Comty School Board, the federal district court in Richmond held that the mandatory leave requirement violated the 1sth Amendment's guarantee of equal sons. The decision was one of the few in which a federal court ment applies to women. The Supreme Court has never done so and has, in fact, explicitly held to the contrary numerous times. Many or all of the discrimination that women activists are trying to overcome would be illegal if the Supreme Court would apply the 14th Amendment to women.

Two other cases involving en in [1]

Texas upholding the woman and the other in Ohio upholding the mandatory leave rule—are bending before courts of appeals. A final major area of recent court action in women's employ ment rights cases involves the en nit award of back pay to women who have been discriminated against Two laws are involved here. the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the

L.A. Exchange to Deal in Coin Futures

The California Gold Rush of 1971

. By Robert A. Wright

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (NYT).-Almost everyone knows that Americans are prohibited from owning gold except as jewelry or in coin collections. But there's a loophole in the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, one overlooked apparently by every-one except David Callahan, president of the West Coast Commodity Exchange.

With that loophole, the exchange hopes to start a new California gold rush. It plans to start trading in gold futures next week, providing the first public market for the precious metal.

"I read the act 50 times over the last year," her. Callahan said. "On the 51st time I found it. It's right there on the first page. Legal owner-ship of gold coins minted before 1934 is specif-ically authorized by the act."

Last month the board of governors of the Commodity Exchange approved British gold sovereigns as the first of several international gold coins it will accept for delivery under its goldfutures contract.

More than 500 million British sovereigns were minted prior to 1934 with a total value of some se billion.

Mr. Calinhan says the exchange has an assured source of these coins in banks in London and Zurich, and also from a Los Angeles businessman, whom he declined to identify. He said the latter has 200,000 such coins. Four British sovereigns will meet the requisite weight and fineness of one troy cance of $9.95 purity gold.

"This would be the first time in the 300-year history of commodities exchanges in this country ond abroad in which open bldding will determine the price of gold," Mr. Callahan pointed out. Gold prices are now established twice each day, at a "fixing" in the London Gold Market, a group of five private companies.

With a $750 down payment (margin deposit), a speculator will be able to purchase one futures contract for 200 troy ounces under the exchange's rules. Price changes will be registered in multiples of five cents per troy cumee, or $10 per contract. A price move of $1 would represent a fluctuation of $200 on each contract. A daily trading limit has been set of $3 per conract, a potential range of $600 per contract per day.

Gold fotures will be traded on the West Coast Commodity Exchange starting July 20. The exchange presently trades in silver, copper, cocoa, summr and U.S. silver coins,

The brokerage commission will be $25 for a round turn (buy and sell) transaction. An in-cestor may hold a gold contract for its term of 17 months or liquidate it on any trading day.

Mr. Callahan said be expects the gold futures contract to attract foreign traders to his exchange, generating a flow of dollars to the United States. This international trading could strengthen the U.S. dollar, reverse the drain on U.S. gold reserves and aid in easing the current world currency crisis," he said.

MODERN Where in the World can you find a higher yield with Less risk than in MODERN MEXICO!

Mexico has enjoyed one of the highest rates of economic growth in the world in recent years", says an authoritative U. S. Department of Commerce Study. Why? Because here's one of the world's most stable currencies. Because qualified experts call Mexico " the standout example of responsible government and business in Latin America" Because there is a controled economic explosion going on in Mexico... in industry, public works, consumer goods, and international trade... which has created a true "investors market", with a yield which invites comparison anywhere in the world.

Maybe this helps to explain why the international "smart money" men are putting their funds down Mexico way... and why maybe you should, too, for exactly the same good reasons. Here are two offerings among many.. BANK TIME DEPOSIT CONTRACTS: Depending upon the length of time involved, these short-term loans to Mexico's Industrial Development Banks yield a net of 9% and up, after Mexican taxes... high enough to make them one of the world's most attractive and safe investments. Interest is payable monthly. Minimum investment: $4,000.00 U.S. dollars, or equivalent in any internationally recognized currency. BANK LIQUID BONDS: These Demand Deposits pay 8.73% net after Mexican taxes, interest payable quarterly; and your money is immediately available whenever you need it. (These Bonds are also ideal for use in compounding interest earned on Bank Time Deposit Contracts). Minimum Investment: $4,000 U.S. dollars, or equivalent in any internationally recognized currency.

Industrial Index In Britain Shows Decline in May

LONDON, July 12 (AP-DJ).— Britain's seasonally adjusted in-dex of industrial production declined in May to 124.6 (1963 equals 100), from a revised 1265 for April, the Central Statistical Office provisionally estimated to 127.3, from 128.7 the previous . Government officials cautioned against attaching too much importance to one month's movement in the indexes. Taking April and May together, they said industrial production as a whole appears to have recovered to its level of the last quarter of last year after dropping in this rear's first quarter, partly be-cause of a lengthy strike at the British plant of Ford Motor Co. The index for all industries construction, gaz electricity and water. the three-month period ended May 31, industrial production as a whole was estimated to be 0.5 percent lower than the revised figures for the preceding three months. For manufacturing alone, production in March-May was provisionally estimated to be 1.1 percent below the preceding December-February period. the borderings the Senate. declined an estimated 7.4 percent.

To her short fictic Cynthia Ozick brings qualities that are large-scaled, majestic, generous. She works out of a tradition, mostly European, that is not afraid, even within modest limits, to employ a broad canvas, an abundance of characters, a variety of incidents. She does not depend on the small epiphany or the arch no-story or the extended anecdote. Her stories are in the scale if not the dimensions of a novel. Her imagination runs by natiuct to the fantastic and the supernatural, and these elements ap-pear in her stories as naturally as the events of everyday. In fact so heightened, so taut, are the feelings and spirit of her characters that we are surprised, for example, that "Envy." a beantifully written and magnificently realized novella, really takes place on the level of the commonplace. And in "Virility." one expects the hand of God or Satan to intervene though neither does or needs to. Explanation to the puzzle is better harnessed in these tales. In the other book, it was almost as if her technique was running away with her fiction, a prizewinner pulling off incredible runs on the piano just to show the world she could do them. In "The Pagan Rahbi," her ability remains, but muted, subordinated to the larger intent of the stories. They have a sustained flow, an ease and certainty of movement that hurries them along to their conclusion. One is less conscious of the mechanics. She is like a fiddler who once played the violin, but who has since learned to play the music.

"Envy" deserves a place with the enduring works in short form. In it, the particular is used as a metaphor for the general; the part for once embraces the whole. One man's resentment and frusan entire culture; a cry for the end of a tradition that was once a way of life.

But the junior circuit has lest the last eight in a row, which dropped its 41-game mark to 17-23-1.

In last year's All-Star game, Weaver's squad held a 4-1 advan-tage in the minth before losing in 12 innings.

Instead of the inning being over, the Reds had two runners on base. Then the batter was Perez, who had driven in the two previous runs with a homer and a single. This time he unloaded a homer into the green seats, out past the 375-foot sign, to put the Reds shead for good.

Dodgers 11, Giants 3 Los Angeles ended a six-game losing streak by scoring four runs in the first inning and continuing to an 11-3 triumph over San Francisco. Al Downing, despite a three-run homer by Bobby Bonds, went the distance for his 11th victory in 18 decisions.

Cabs Z, 5, Padres 8, 7 Milit Pappas retired the first 15 betters he faced as the Chicago Cubs took the first game, 2-9, but San Diego, scoring three times in the second inning, won, 7-5, in the second contest. Johnny Callison drove in Chicago's runs in the opener with a homer and sacrifice fly.

A's 3, 3, Angels 2, 6 Roger Repoz hit a double and two singles and California tallied four tmearned runs en route to a 6-3 triumph and a split of a twin bill with Oakland. Tommy Davie's pinch single in the eighth scored the deciding run in the A's 3-2 victory in the opener. Oakland, which completed fire double plays in the nightcap, upped its Western lead to 11

Brewers 1, 0, White Sox 0, I Milwaukee and Chicago White Sox split a pair of 1-0 decisions. In the opener, Milwaukee's Marty Pattin hurled a four-hitter and Ted Kubiak drove in the run with a sacriflee fly. Ed Herrman's fifth homer, in the fifth, gave Chicago's Wilbur Wood the second game.

Twins 6, 7, Reyals 5, 1 Jim Nettles hit his first major league home run in the tenth to gire Minnesota a 6-5 victory against Kansas City in the opener. Nettles, the brother of Cleveland's Graig, added a two-run homer in the second game as the Twins completed a sweep, Cesar Toyar had six consecutive hits-a double and two eingles in the opener and three singles in the second game before grounding out.

Orioles 7, Indians 1

A six-run seventh inning highthree-run double and Dave Johnson'e two-run homer lifted Bal-timore to a 7-1 triumph over Cleveland.

Merckx Takes Lead in Tour As Ocana Is Injured in Fall

LUCHON, France July 12 (UPI),-Eddy Mercks today took ever the lead of the Tour de France when Lus Ochna of Spain took a serous fall and has to drop out of the race. Mercks was in second position overall, 7 minutes 23 seconds behied the Scaniard before the accident. He now has a 2:21 lead over Jucp Zoetemels or the Netherlands.

Jose-Vanuel Fuenter of Spain won today's 14th stage, But this was not the way Belgian Mercks wanted to reguin his yellow jersey, the symbol of the Tour leadership. He refused to wear the fersey after the race.

The Belgian said he and Ocana were thrown off-balance in a tight downhill turn by a stream of mud that cut across the road fellowing the torrential hall storm that flooded today's 2144 Ellometer mountain stage, "I saw that Ocana fell, but I thought he was getting up as I took off," said Mereks, who had also taken a fail. But Ocane didn't have time to get up, as Zoetemelk crashed into him, unable to brake on the muddy road, and knocked the Spaniard to the ground. Then more than half a dozen racers crashed into the helpless Ocana, who lay on the ground. Roadside spectators, in an effort to protect him, lay on top of him. Ocares suffered a bruised rib cage and right shoulder. He

"Keeping him on the roster," the coach went on, "makes him eligible to play any time he is able to play." McCsfferty, preparing for what he calls a "tough season," was pleased at the signing of Don McCauley, a running back from North Carolina who was the Colts' No. 1 draft choice. The Cleveland Browns, San

-she'll be 15 in November-but

Shane Gould is now swimming's nict spectacular performer. She won all the women's freestyle events at the fifth Santa Clara international swimming meet, and almost left the pool yesterday owning world records

Ye-terday, the final day of the three-day meet, the blende from Sydney came within 1 1/2 second of the 800-meter record, winning in 9:629. It was only the third time she'd tried the distance in empetition. Enc set o world record in the

"She's just amazing. I can't behave a girl can go that far and still be able to sprint so well at the end," said John Kinsella, America's top male distance swimmer.

Another Australian, Graham Windeatt, 17, was the second big-gest winner here. He took all three events he entered, includ-Ing the 1,500-meter freestyle in a meet record 16:12.7 yesterday.

Russian breaststrokers Nikolai Pankin and Galina Stepanora were among the double winners in the meet. Pankin, world record holder in the 100-meter breaststroke, beat Brian Job of the Santa Clara Swim Club by onetenth of a second in the event yesterday. His time of 1:06.6 wos a meet record, as was the 1:16.4 by Mrs. Stepanors in the women's 100. Foreigners ended up with first place finishes in 13 of the 24 individual swimming events. They left with nine meet records, including four by Miss Gould.

Meanwhile, world record hold-ers Job, Kinsella, Debbie Meyer and Alice Jones were among the top U.S. swimmers shot out from the victory stand.

"You'll see a lot different swimming next month in Houston," said George Haines, the Santa. Clara coach who headed the U.S. tenm in the 1968 Olympics. America's best are pointing to-ward the national Amateur Ath-

McLarens Finish 1-2 In Can-Am

By John S. Radosta GAINSVILLE, Ala., July 12 (NYT).-Team McLaren reversed the usual proer of finish yesterday, with Peter Revson winning Road Atlanta Canadian-American Chellenge Cup and Dennis Hulme, the New Zealander who usually wins, finishing sec-

Revson gave the race an interesting fillip by slowing down dramatically at the finish. Immedia'ely after taking the check-ered flag, he parked on the grass beside the track. He soid "something" in the suspension system had broken—he was not sure what. In any case, the car was through, like the one-hoss shay.

Revsoo and Hulme, driving a pair of bright orange McLaren M8F-Chevrolets, finished in a lnp by themselves, with Revson 20.6 seconds in front. He covered the 190 miles-75 laps around Road Atlanta e hilly course of 2.5 miles and 12 turns—in 1 hour 42 min-utes 9.6 seconds for an average speed of 111,17 miles an hour.

Basically, it was only a three-car race. Jackie Stewart's Lola T260-Chevrolet, the winner of the season's second Can-Am race two weeks ago in Quebec, fell out of contention with a flat tire and braking and suspension problems. He completed 62 laps.

Lothar Motschenbacher ran third in a McLaren M8E, a full lap behind the leaders. The fourth-place finisher was Tony Adamowicz in a McLaren M8B, three laps behind. Milt Minter ran fifth in a Porsche 917, four laps back of the leaders.

This was the third race of the $1-million series of ten races for sports-racing cars. Hubne won the season's opener on June 13 at Bowmanville, Ontario. Team 36 Can-Ams run since the beginning of the 1967 season.

Fischer Extends Unbeaten Streak In Chess Semis

DENVER, July 12 (UPI) .-Bobby Fischer of Brooklyn, N.Y., defeated Bent Larsen of Denmark in the third game of their world semi-final chess competition in Temple Buell College in Denver yesterday.

Fischer now leads by 3-0, and needs only two and a half points from the seven remaining games to score the match victory.

Larsen played the Sicilian defense, choosing a backwards varia-tion. Fischer played aggressively, advancing pawns on his king's side. After two previous losses. Larsen had apparently decided to play cantiously, rather than look for counter chances, which is his normal style. He finally resigned on the 41st move.

Prayer for Tourists

LONDON,—According to The porters and unilcensed English-Times of London, the Greek Orthodox Church has just issued a new prayer asking the Lord to protect the Greek people from tourists. The prayer, which is to be said by monks and nuns every morning and every evening, goes

"Lord Jesus Christ, Son of God, have mercy on the cities, the islands, and the villages of our Orthodox fatherland, as well as tha holy monasteries, which are scourged by the worldly touristic

Buchwald

"Grace us with a solution to this dramatic problem and protect our brethren who are sorely tried by the modernistic spirit of these contemporary Western invaders.

Now it's only fair, if the monks and nuns are beseeching the Lord with antitourist prayers that the tourists get equal time. So I have written B prayer for tourists which they must recite when they get up in the morning and go to bed at night.

It goes like this:

"Heavenly Father, look down on us your humble, chedient tourist servants, who are doomed to travel this parth, taking photographs, mailing postcards, buying souvenirs and walking around in drip-dry underwear.

"We beseech you, O Lord, to see that our plane is not hijacked, our luggage is not lost and our overweight haggage goes unnoticed.

Rock festival at the Washington Monument on July 4.

The Shredded Fabric of Rock Festivals

By Mike Jahn

NEW YORK, July 12 (NYT).—"Everyooe's saying the music's for free -that's the line from a recent rock album by singer David Croshy. But there have been signs that rock music can be expensive, too-not only in terms of tickets, but also in the toll of deaths, destruction of property, drug abuse and general misery that seems to accompany today's rock festivals. The mass youth gatherings that were once so refreshing, like an unexpected sea cruisp, are going down like the Andrea Dorea.

Free? Last Friday, Grand Funk Railroad, critically one of the worst-received groups in the history of rock, played B concert io New York's Shea Stadium, earning a reported $290,000 for its effort. A week ago, Bill Graham closed the Fillmore West in San Francisco, having closed New York's Fillmorp East last month. He said he'd had it with overpriced performers. and the commercialization of the rock Refreshing? The chief promoter of last year's Powder Ridge Rock Festival, held in Middlefield, Conn., is under indictment over the sale of more than 20,000 tickets at $30 each for a concert that never took place. The money has never been refunded, A recent festival at McRae, La., was the scene of three draths, and much drug abuse: most of the scheduled performers failed to show. And last week's Newport Jazz Festival had to be cut short when several thousand youths broke down the rates and stormed the stage, refusing to

How did it happen? The Monterey (Calif.) Pop Festival of 1967 was the first of the big rock affairs. It was a peaceful gathering, one which started the careers of the likes of Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin.

The Woodslock Music and Art Pair, in White Lake, N.Y., in August, 1969, was similarly peaceful, though in retrospect the camaraderle seems as much a result of banding-together - to - fight - adverse - conditions as it does any real sense of love. The communal fabric was already torn to the extent that several thousand people were treated for had drug trips.

By the time of Altamont, in California late 1969, the fuhric had been shredded. Many were beaten by Hell's Angels, hired as security guards, and one person was murdered.

What's caused the chaos? Herewith, a few possible reasons: Somewhere between Woodstock and Powder Ridge the idea became established in many minds that one need not buy a ticket to a rock festival. It was love, it was free, you could crash the gote. But the idea came face to face with skyrocketing fees of rock stars. The late Jimi Hendrix was earning $1,500 per night wheo he began B few years ago. Just before his death last autumn; he was offered $100,000 to play at a festival

So it came about that a promoter, if he was to make moosy, had to attract half the nation's youth to his festival site. The increased size of the crowd multiplied the traffic, drug, sanitation, community relations and food problems. It also made it more likely that a rowdy element would be present.

The festivals camp to be identified with massive nudity and drug use, and that helped change tha tenor of the audiroce, too, from meditator to voyeur, from music lover to thrill seeker.

And there is another, more political aspect to the change. On a conscious level, many roung people are waking up to the fact that love and peace are being sold for money. More subtly, there operates something that might be called the doctrine of accessible targets. The "establishment," the Pentagon, for example, is not accessible-and at the prices thry get, concert promoters and rock stars definitely are part of the "establishment," no matter how many raised fists one sees onstage.

Is there a future for the rock festival? Not likely, unless there is enough pasy access to avoid traffie problems; gates made of structural steel, and a crowd size limited to perhaps 10,000 to 25,000 people.

As for the huge, Woodstockian festivals, they do seem to be on the way out.
